Washington, DC – Porterfield, Lowenthal, Fettig & Sears, LLC (PLFS), a leading bipartisan government relations firm, announced today that Jeremy Rabinovitz has joined the company as Senior Executive Vice President. Rabinovitz comes to PLFS after more than seven years at ML Strategies and following a 20-year career on Capitol Hill.

“We are pleased to welcome Jeremy to our firm,” said Lendell Porterfield, CEO of Porterfield, Lowenthal, Fettig & Sears. “For nearly three decades, Jeremy has provided wise counsel and thoughtful strategic advice to Members of Congress and clients alike. We are especially excited to work with him to expand beyond our core strength of financial services into telecommunications, technology, health care, and other critical policy areas.”

Rabinovitz said, “After several years at ML Strategies, for which I am very grateful, I am delighted to join Lendell, Andrew, Dwight, Dawn, and the rest of the PLFS team at one of the most prestigious government relations shops in town.”

The hiring of Rabinovitz will bring about a reunion between him and Andrew Lowenthal, President of Porterfield, Lowenthal, Fettig & Sears. Rabinovitz and Lowenthal worked together as Chief of Staff and Legislative Director, respectively, for Rep. Carolyn B. Maloney (D-NY) from 1993-1994. We consider ourselves fortunate that one of Washington’s most respected government relations professionals is joining our team.”

Prior to joining the office of Rep. Maloney, Rabinovitz served as Legislative Assistant and Chief of Staff to Rep. Stephen J. Solarz (D-NY). He later served as Chief of Staff to Rep. Walter Capps (D-CA) and Rep. Lois Capps (D-CA). Rabinovitz has a B.A. in Psychology from Harvard College. He lives with his wife and two daughters in Maryland.
